Purchased Services Workshop
Tuesday, March 3 | 8:15 a.m. – 9:45 a.m.
Room: Thurgood Marshall South

Title: The Evolution of Purchased Services Workshop

Value Statement: Purchased services at hospitals and health systems have evolved greatly over the past decade. Once a small proportion of overall spend, they now represent a major component of any health system’s budget. The theme of this workshop will highlight how these services have evolved and where they are going. This workshop will highlight how the provider and supplier allocate resources and work together to achieve positive outcomes for their organization and their patients. In the end, the purchased services must contribute both the health system and the suppliers achieving their overall strategic goals.

Session Objectives
- Understand how Purchased Services Programs have evolved over the past five years
- Understand the importance of Purchased Services in changing healthcare markets
- Learn from experts where the overall management of purchased services is heading over the next five years
- Learn how to quantify the value of Purchased Services and hear from providers on how they are deploying resources to manage Purchased Services
Disruptors or Interrupters? Managing the perceived barriers and opportunities created by the changing Healthcare landscape and the impact on providers and suppliers.

Objectives
Explore disruptors and disruptive innovations and how they will impact suppliers and providers throughout the healthcare continuum.

How are policy disruptions like tariffs, drug shortages, Medicare for all, etc. impacting supply chain?

What technologies are most likely to gain traction? What role will AI, blockchain, Telemedicine, play in where and how healthcare is delivered to the consumer?

What can be done to “de-risk” the supply chain to address these challenges? How can providers and suppliers address these challenges together?

How will these changes impact the triple aim of cost, quality and outcomes?
