Connecting Our Patients with Care They Need When They Need It

FAH hospitals are leading payers of state and local taxes that are vital to supporting community services.

Connected hospital systems offer diversity of sites of care and increased patient choice.

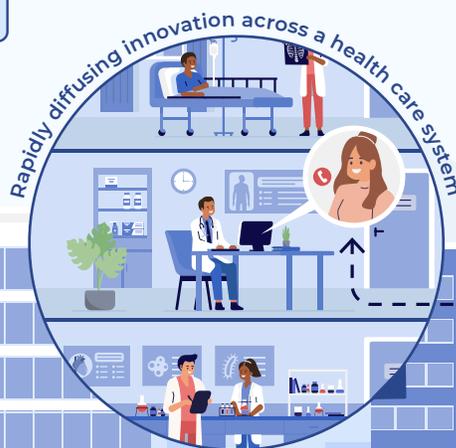

Systemization and cutting-edge technology - like telehealth - provide patients with immediate access to high-quality care and the benefits of system-wide clinical innovations.

We invest in the next generation of caregivers through medical teaching and nursing programs.

Our systematized health care networks foster coordination and preparedness for emergencies.

A market-based health care system innovates and shares information across the continuum, benefiting patients through high-quality, comprehensive care.

Our facilities are major employers that boost individuals, families, and local economies. Our hospitals are often the leading employer in an area, offering diverse employment opportunities.

Our hospitals are learning health care systems, using advanced data analytics and practices to improve care and partner with research organizations and Federal agencies, like the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Tax-paying hospitals are leaders in providing charity care. They had the highest charity care-to-expense ratio in 46% of the hospital service areas containing all 3 types of hospital ownership across the US.*
